(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

The sheriff and his deputies of Bergen county, New Jersey are armed with machine guns, riot guns and rifles and are practicing the use of tear and gas bombs. General Goethals, commanding the supply and transportation system of the port of New York announced he is ready for any emergency.

BIRMINGHAM, July 18—Representative George Huddleston, Democrat of Alabama, addressing the railroad strikers and their families urged them to stand firm. He blamed the Harding administration for the rail and coal strikes and said the President is ignorant of what the railroad employees want.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

CHICAGO, July 17—Prospects of peace in the railroad strike have diminished with the addition of approximately 100,000 men to the ranks of the strikers. Negotiations for settlement are being held but it is believed by many that the nation will this week meet with the greatest industrial crisis in its history. Seventy-five thousand maintenance men from the New York switching area, 10,000 stationery engineers, firemen, and others throughout the country, and clerks and freight handlers of various sections are walking out this morning. Coupled with the coal shortage the situation is aggravating to say the least. Seventy shop employees of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads and seven policemen are suffering from poisoning after eating food served to strikebreakers. Health officers are investigating. More trains are being cancelled daily.

Debs Asks Cooperation

Eugene V. Debs, Socialist, recently pardoned from prison and leader of the great American railroad union strike in 1924 issued a statement to railroad strikers, saying: "The time has come to strike together, vote together, and fight together." Debs said: "There has been some slight disorders and a few scabs hurt. This has been the extent of violence but it is sufficient to bring to the minds of the strikers what they fought for in the late world war." He referred to the Federal Government's announcement against violence and the mobilization of the national guard in several states, adding: "You will have no trouble in guessing what kind of action is meant on the part of the national strike government which you shouted for, voted for, invested your last dollar for, crossed the Atlantic to fight, be gassed and to die for. This same crowd to a man is lined up against you ready to shoot you down like dogs. Your struggles are entering the critical stage and whether the tolling hosts shall emerge victorious and in triumph depends entirely upon the capacity of the workers to stand together, strike together, and fight together, all along the line."

Wailuku Democrats have lost one of their chief leaders and hardest workers. Moses K. Ekau has seen the great political light, felt the change of heart and has signed the Republican precinct club roll. He is now a duly registered Republican and he is glad of it.

Ekau was one of the prominent figures in Link McCandless' last campaign for delegate. He presided at the meeting for Link that was held in the Wailuku Hippodrome and was one of the strong speakers for the Democratic candidate there.

Ekau, before signing up as a Republican, told his democratic friends that he could no longer stay with the McCandless-Democratic party and wanted them to know of his feelings. He advises them to follow his course if they see the situation as he does.

Secretary Clark of the Honolulu body wrote that the proposal is to have the visitors spend one day on Maui and two on Hawaii, the balance of their stay being on Oahu. He suggested the subject be taken up by the Maui Chamber and arrangements made for the entertainment of the visitors.

Chinese Held Up And Robbed In Wailuku Store

Three Filipinos Sought By Police For One Of Most Daring Crimes Ever Perpetrated On Maui Saturday Night

IN all parts of Maui the police are looking for three Filipinos wanted for a daring hold-up and robbery of a Chinese storekeeper in his Market Street establishment Saturday night. The sheriff's department have strong suspicions but have not made arrests as yet. The sheriff himself and Deputy George Cummings are devoting practically all their time to the solution of the crime.

Saturday night on Market street in Wailuku, three Filipinos perpetrated one of the most daring assaults and robberies that Maui has known in years. Doong Soong, whose place of business faces Kalua avenue, was the victim and from him was taken about $3600.

As Doong Soong told the story to the police, the three Filipinos came into his store early Saturday evening, selected some goods and said they would call to pay for them and take them away after the picture show was over. It is surmised that this was done in order to have him open when the usual Saturday evening crowd had left Market street.

The Chinese kept his place open for him and the trio returned. One of them handed him a $20 bill from which he was to take payment for their purchases. He went to his safe to make the change and took out a bag of money from which to make the change. Then his visitors "jumped him." They choked him into silence, threw him onto the floor and placed a bag of sugar on his head and another on his feet. Then they took the bag of money and made their escape.

When Doong Soong was able to free himself he raised the alarm and the police were summoned and took up the case. It was reported that the robbers were not strangers in this part of Wailuku and that there were one tall and two short men.

Fire In Waste Cause Of Much Excitement

Fire in old rags and waste in the paint shop of the Maui Garage building roused considerable excitement in upper Wailuku between 9 and 10 o'clock Saturday night but was quickly extinguished before any serious damage had been done.

Clarence Pereira appears to have been the first to discover the fire. He was seated on the lanai of his parents home on Main Street and called the attention of his mother to the blaze he noticed. He ran across the street and Mrs. Pereira hurried next door to the Lukin place to have an alarm telephoned in. She caught up a rug to take with her intending to run across the street and try to smother the flames after giving the alarm.

King Yangi happened to be passing in a car and stopped as he was passing the building. He secured a fire extinguisher and turned the chemical on and the flames were soon out.

Rush Of Requests For Free Water In Wailuku Raises Serious Problem

First singly, then in twos and threes, then by the half dozen and more recently in bigger bunches have come requests for "free water" under the agreement entered into in 1912 between the county, the territory and Wailuku Sugar Company until a some what serious situation has arisen. The subject came to the attention of the board of supervisors Friday afternoon in connection with the report of the county engineer who told of his having discussed the subject with Manager H. B. Penhallow of the Sugar Company in making the semi-annual claim for water used by the Wailuku water works. It came up especially in connection with the claim of free water for lots 1, 2 and 3 of the Valley View Tract.

Penhallow Writes

In reference to the claims Manager Penhallow sent the following letter to Engineer Low:

"Mr. Paul Low,
County Engineer, County of Maui,
Dear Sir:

"We acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 7th, in connection with free water for certain water users in Wailuku.

"Please give us more exact data covering Lots 1, 2 and 3, mentioned in your letter. In other words, we would like to know what kuleanas of the Bailey Estate these particular lots are on.

Data Is Sought For Ten Years Program Of School Building

Explanatory of the plans for a ten year school building program for all of the counties of Hawaii which was reported in Associated Press dispatches to Maui News letters have come to the board of supervisors and the Maui Chamber of Commerce which contained an tentative outline of a letter to be sent to school commissioners, county boards and engineers and others and asks suggestions in the premises. The tentative letter is entirely preliminary and its text follows:

"During and immediately following the war, Hawaii's school building program, like that of the mainland, was necessarily and seriously retarded. This produced congestion and many other difficulties.

"During the past two years, however, Hawaii has made rapid strides in her school-building program, as shown by numerous modern school plants recently erected or now under construction.

"I am now addressing the officials of this Department and County Boards of Supervisors for the purpose of laying out a comprehensive building program not only for the coming biennium, but for the next decade.

"His excellency, the Governor, has emphasized the absolute necessity for such a program. He has expressed the opinion that such a plan, in the long run will prevent expensive mistakes, save the time of officials, and effect substantial economies in land purchase and construction.

"This forward-looking program can succeed only through the active sympathetic cooperation of the representatives of this Department and the County Boards of Supervisors.

"The advantage of a school-building program projected over a period of ten or more years are obvious. Among them may be mentioned:

"1. Greater certainty of providing buildings and rooms when and where needed.

"2. Better planning of buildings as to architecture, convenience and modern educational needs.

"3. Organized placement of buildings, according to ground plans which provide for expansion and maintain artistic appearance.

"4. Better opportunities for acquiring additional lands where necessary because the needs can be foreseen in time to facilitate acquisition. I am, therefore, definitely recommending that the Department and Counties begin at once to assemble and perfect information along the following lines:

"1. Ground plans of all schools, showing present lay-out and indicating addition or extensions.

"2. Itemized school lists, showing needed additional buildings, classrooms, shops, kitchens, school gardens, and school farm lands, etc.

"3. Places where new schools will have to be established where there is land to be acquired for the same.

"4. Places where schools should be consolidated.

"5. Places where public transportation of pupils would be more satisfactory and economical than building additional rooms.

"Respectfully yours,
(Sgd.) VAUGHAN MACCAUGHEY,
Superintendent."

Lava Stream Pours Into Kilauea Again

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Resumption of activity at Halemau-mau is reported in a special message from Hilo to the Honolulu Star Bulletin.

Halemau-mau, the firepit of the volcano of Kilauea, empty and dead for several weeks since the recent outbreak in the Kau desert, again became active at 2 o'clock this morning when molten lava started to pour into the 1000-foot pit from a point 100 feet above its bottom.

From this opening in the side of the enormous pit lava is cascading in a 100-foot drop, and early this morning had formed a boiling lake 300 feet in diameter in which fountains are playing to a height of 40 feet.

A magnificent spectacle is offered and further activity is looked for.

Oroville Pleased To Learn Its Pines Are Growing In Maui Now

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Introduction of pine trees from California to Maui has roused interest in Oroville, California, the former home of Dr. F. A. St. Sure and the June 29, newspapers of that town give front page stories to California pines in Hawaii. The articles are self explanatory. The Daily Register said:

"Pines from Oroville, the regular digger kind, have been introduced in the Hawaiian Islands and are flourishing there, according to a letter received yesterday by Mrs. Thomas Green from Dr. Frank St. Sure.

"The pine trees are the offspring of seven pine nuts which were planted on the island by Dr. St. Sure, after being sent to him by Mrs. Green.

"The trees were planted and cared for by government nursery men. They will shortly be transplanted, Dr. St. Sure writes, and will be labeled 'Pine Trees from Oroville, California.'

"The new type of tree is causing no end of comment among tourists as well as residents of the island.

In the Mercury the following was printed:

"Through the homesickness of a son of Oroville for the land of his nativity, the pines that clothe the Pacific slopes of California's mountains may be introduced into Hawaii and made to grow into forests on the mountains of the Pacific Islands.

"Dr. F. A. St. Sure, formerly of Oroville, but now practicing at Hilo, T. H., wrote to his cousin, Mrs. Josephine Green, of Oroville, that he was homesick and would like to have a few pine cones to show his children when telling them stories of the big pine forests near his Oroville home.

"In the cones which were sent to the islands by Mrs. Green were some pine nuts, which Dr. St. Sure turned over to the government nursery at Hilo. Now comes the news that the nuts were planted and have produced growing pinelings.

"In the event that these young pine trees thrive they will be replanted high up on the mountain sides, and if they grow they will be labeled 'From Oroville, California.'

"The sight of the small green pines has made Dr. St. Sure more homesick than ever, he writes and the first vacation he gets he is going to head for Oroville."

President Requests Governors To Furnish Military Protection; Understood Federal Troops May Be Used

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WASHINGTON, July 18—President Harding will late today send simultaneously telegrams directing the operators of all bituminous coal mines closed owing to the coal miners strike to resume operations immediately and requesting the governors of the states in which are located the mines affected to provide all necessary military protection for the resumption of mine work. It is understood that if state troops are unable to cope with the situation, federal troops will be employed.

It was understood that President Harding last night instructed bituminous operators to return home and begin operations of the mines immediately to assure the country's supply of fuel. The majority of operators are reported to have pledged to resume activity under the government proposal. The President said the freedom and action of workmen and employers was less important than the public welfare and national security.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WASHINGTON, July 17—It is limited in well informed government circles, the administration is preparing to take drastic action regarding the coal strike within 48 hours. It is understood that President Harding is of the opinion that as the miners refused government arbitration and the bituminous operators remain undecided, public interests demands an immediate reopening of the mines. It is also understood that the President is prepared to direct the operators to reopen the mines under the protection of federal troops with the American flag planted at the entrance to each mine. It was said the same method will be used in dealing with the railroad strike if conditions remain unchanged and do not improve soon.

DISCUSS INDEMNITY

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

PARIS, July 18—French and British officials after a discussion favor the reduction of German indemnity to fifty billion gold marks with a moratorium to extend over the remainder of the 1922 cash payments, and have cancelled the French debts to England as a basis for the solution of reparations. The British are heartily in accord with the suggestion but decided to not push matters when it was learned the United States would not discuss the cancellation of the allied debt. It is expected the United States will support the suggestion unofficially.
